THE ELEVENTH PASTORS' INSTITUTE

THE impact of the war upon the work of the churches and upon the thinking of religious leaders, upon homes and families, and upon higher education will receive attention at the eleventh Pastors' Institute to be conducted on the Quadrangles of the University of Chicago, July 26 to August 9. The Institute has been conducted annually for the last ten years under the auspices of the Divinity School of the University, the Chicago Theological Seminary, and the Disciples Divinity House. This year Meadville Theological School joins the group of sponsors. Among the guest preachers and lecturers will be Dr. Ralph W. Sockman and Dr. John Sutherland Bonnell, of New York; Professor Ernest R. Groves, of the University of North Carolina; Dr. Roy A. Burkhardt, of Columbus, Ohio; Dr. Thornton Merrian, of Northwestern University; and Professor Millar Burrows, of Yale Divinity School. Beside the guest instructors many of the leading members of the University and Seminary faculties will preach, lecture, or conduct especially prepared "refresher" courses. Among these instructors will be Dean Ernest C. Colwell, President Albert W. Palmer, Dean Charles W. Gilkey, and Professors S. C. Kincheloe, James L. Adams, H. N. Wieman, Davis Edwards, W. C. Bower, Wilhelm Pauck, John Knox, W. E. Garrison, and Charles T. Holman.

Distinguished Preaching at the Institute

Four great services of worship in Rockefeller Memorial Chapel are included in the program. Dean Charles W. Gilkey will preach at the service Sunday morning, July 26, which will usher in the Institute, and the following Sunday morning, August 2, Dr. John Sutherland Bonnell, of Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, eminent both as preacher and as personal counselor will occupy the pulpit, speaking on "The Quest for God." He will preach again Monday evening, August 3, at the Institute service of worship on the subject, "The Psychology of Conversion." On Sunday, August 9, President Albert W. Palmer, of Chicago Theological Seminary, will be the preacher. Dr. Bonnell will also lecture during the second week of the Institute, Tuesday through Saturday, August 3-8, from 9:00 to 9:50 each morning on the subject, "The Pastor as Spiritual Counselor." His daily topics will be: "Getting the Parishioners' Signals," "The Art of Asking Questions," "The Problem of Suicide," "Our Ministry to the Sick," and "The Goal of Healthy-Mindedness."

Dr. Sockman will not preach but he will speak at the opening dinner of the Institute on Monday evening, July 27, in the dining-room of the University Church of the Disciples. His subject will be, "A Way Through." He will also lecture to preachers each morning, Tuesday through Saturday, July 28 to August 1, from 9:00 to 9:50, on "The Dimension of a Modern Preacher," using the subtitles: "His Length," "His Breadth," "His Depth," "His Height," and "His Volume."

Each morning from 8:30 to 8:50 a service of worship will be conducted in the chancel of Rockefeller Memorial Chapel. This service will be led during the first week by Dean Ernest C. Colwell, of the Divinity School, and during the second week by Dr. W. B. Blakemore, of the Disciples' Divinity House.

Thornton Merriam's Seminar for Religious Workers in Colleges

Dr. Thornton Merriam, director of religious activities at Northwestern University and former associate director of the American Council on Religion in Higher Education, assisted by other well-known leaders in religious work among students, will conduct a seminar during the first week of the Institute on "The American College Campus in Wartime—Changes and Their Impact on the Religious Program." There will be a morning session from 11:00 to 11:50 which will be given chiefly to lectures, and there will be more informal afternoon sessions with panel and round-table discussions in the afternoons from 3:00 to 5:00. Topics to be considered in the morning sessions include the educational program, campus group-relations, personal problems and tensions of students, organized religious programs, and education in values. The afternoon discussions will consider the implications of the foregoing issues for religious work on the college campus with particular emphasis on the adjustments and programs demanded by new conditions. This seminar will be of special interest to directors of religious activities on college campuses, teachers of religion in colleges, directors of religious foundations, college administrators, and pastors with college constituencies.

Conference on Counseling in Marriage and Family Life in a Time of Stress

During the second week a very significant conference will be conducted in co-operation with two commissions of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, those on Marriage and the Home and on Religion and Health. "Counseling in Marriage and Family Life in a Time of Stress" will be the general title, and the leaders will be Professor Ernest R. Groves, of the University of North Carolina; Reverend Roy A. Burkhart, Ph.D., of the Community Church Columbus, Ohio; Harold S. Hulbert, M.D., Chicago psychiatrist; Dr. Regina Wescott Wieman, director of the Family Community Project of Addison, Michigan; Mrs. Evelyn M. Duvall, of the Association for Family Living, Chicago; Dr. Andrew W. Brown, chief psychologist of the Institute for Juvenile Research, Chicago; Professor Ernest W. Burgess, president of the National Conference on Family Relations; and Jules Masserman, M.D., psychiatrist, of the University of Chicago. Dr. L. Foster Wood, executive secretary of the Commission on Marriage and the Home, author of several books in the field of family relations, and Reverend Seward Hiltner, executive secretary of the Commission on Religion and Health will be co-chairman of the conference.

The conference is ambitious in its aims. The morning sessions will review the entire situation faced by the family today, will consider the distinctively Christian approach to family life, will discuss education for family relationships and the place the church is taking and should take in this enterprise. The broader, more normative aspect to the subject will be emphasized. The afternoon seminars will deal with the problems, new and old, obvious and underlying, which face the Christian leader in his work with individuals and families. Considerable emphasis will be laid on the problems of children. There will be several participants on the panel each day, and their discussion of each issue will be followed by a general discussion. Questions and specific problems and cases submitted by members of the conference will have considerable influence on the seminar content.

In addition to the schools conducting the Pastors' Institute and the two commissions of the Federal Council of Churches, several theological schools and city and state councils of churches are sponsoring this conference.

This Year's "Refresher" Courses

The "refresher" courses this summer will be particularly timely. Dr. Palmer will conduct a course through both weeks on the subject, "Preaching in Wartime." During the first week he will discuss "Preaching to Civilians" and the second week "Preaching to Men in Uniform." Professor Wieman's subject will be "The Promise of Our Time." Other topics and lecturers will be "Religious Institutions and Morale in Wartime," Professor Kincheloe; "The Christian Doctrines of Love and Law," Professor Adams; "Some Major Ideas of the Bible," Professor Burrows, of Yale; "Christ and Christian Education," Professor Bower; "Sources of the Crisis Theology," Professor Pauck; "Ethics and Eschatology in the Teaching of Jesus," Professor Knox; and "Religious Values in Contemporary Literature," Professor Garrison. Professor Davis Edwards will conduct a speech clinic through both weeks.

The Evening Programs

The evening programs will undoubtedly be, as in former years, interesting and valuable features. They will be conducted, weather permitting, in the delightfully cool and pleasant West Garth of the Chicago Theological Seminary. There will be a series of round tables which will discuss the impact of the war upon religion and religious agencies; and in each case the round-table discussion will be followed by an open forum and questions from the floor. Topics and speakers will be selected in the light of the developing situation as the time approaches. The rich resources in personnel of the University and of many other Chicago agencies and institutions guarantee able and authoritative speakers. A round table on Sunday evening, August 2, will discuss "What Shall the Churches Do Now?" with Dr. Bonnell and Professors Holman and Adams participating. Two of the round tables during the second week will deal with problems raised in the conference on "Marriage and Family Life," one of them discussing "The Child in a World at War," and the second, "The Family and Emotional Security Today."

Social and Recreation Affairs

There will be many opportunities for those attending the Institute to become acquainted with their neighbors at luncheons, dinners, teas, and recreational activities. The big social event will be the Institute dinner on Monday evening, July 27, at 6:30, when Dr. Sockman will speak. There will be four women's luncheons with President Palmer, Dr. Burkhart, and Professors Groves and Holman speaking. An Alumni luncheon for the Chicago Theological Seminary will be held Wednesday, July 29, and for the Divinity School of the University of Chicago on Wednesday, August 5. The Campbell Institute luncheon will be held Tuesday, August 4, and the dinner of the same group Friday evening, August 7. There will be a farewell luncheon, Saturday noon, August 8. All dinners and luncheons will be served in the dining-hall of the University Church of the Disciples of Christ. Arrangements will be made for use by those who are registered at the Institute of the University facilities for recreation on the tennis courts and in the gymnasiums and swimming pools. An information table will be maintained where groups may receive information about any Chicago institution or neighborhood which they may desire to visit and where they may arrange plans for tours. An elaborate literature table will be maintained by the Bookstore of the University of Chicago, and books may be purchased. A cool "loafing" spot will be selected, and soft drinks and light refreshments will be on sale. Everything possible will be done for the comfort and convenience of the Institute's guests.

Plan to Come

The complete printed program is now available and will be mailed upon request. If you can use additional copies for distribution among your friends, please let us know and they will be cheerfully forwarded. Make up a party to ride in your car and save on tires. If you don't feel like risking a long drive, clergy fares are low. There are a multitude of problems which ministers will want to think through before beginning a new year's work this autumn, and the Institute is planned with the needs of these ministers in mind. Costs are low; the registration fee is four dollars for both weeks, or two dollars for either week. Accommodations may be secured in one of the Seminary residences for seventy-five cents per day per person while the rooms last or for one dollar per day per person in Dole Hall, George Williams College. Rooms in hotels in the neighborhood are available at rates of one dollar and up. Better plan to come and make reservations early. You will be very welcome.

Chaplains Logan and Nash

Address Students

About thirty-five students gathered in Swift Hall on March 11 to hear Chaplain Logan of the Sixth Area Army Corps give an illustrated lecture on the work of the army chaplain. Captain Frank Nash, Navy Senior Chaplain at Great Lakes, gave a similar address Wednesday, April 8. Several Divinity School students have sent in applications for chaplaincies.

Divinity School Teas

On January 22 Ben Burns was the speaker at the Divinity School tea held at 4:00 in the Common Room of Swift Hall. He gave a humorous reading of Hiawatha in Jewish dialect.

President Robert Maynard Hutchins spoke on the subject, "The Impact of the War on the Divinity School," at the January 29 tea. He stressed the fact that, since the Divinity School student is exempt from military duty, he has an obligation to make the most of his opportunity to prepare for his essential task as an ethical and religious guide.

"The Registration of Ministers" was the subject of a round-table discussion at the tea on February 19. Participants were Professors John Knox and Wilhelm Pauck and William Lovell and Howard Parsons.

Diamond Jubilee Celebration

Two hundred students and Faculty members attended the Winter Quarter party of the Divinity School in Swift Hall, February 17, at eight. The committee in charge—composed of Ben Burns, chairman; Dick Pope, president, of the student council; the presidents of the various clubs; representatives of the different residences; and Dr. McNeill, of the Faculty—had decided to go the University of Chicago one better in its recent Fiftieth Anniversary celebration and have a Diamond Jubilee celebration. Swift Hall was converted into a carnival which featured exhibits by the Divinity School clubs, the residences, the Fellows, Chicago Theological Seminary, and the Faculty. Described modestly in the program as colossal, inspiring, stupendous, educational and gigantic, the celebration proved a thoroughly enjoyable occasion.

Guests were divided into three groups and were conducted on tours of all the exhibits by Dean Colwell, Fred Neal, and John McCaw. Among the exhibits was a "Museum of Priceless Relics" presented by Snell Hall, which featured the original snake and apple. A model ceremony for the awarding of degrees was sponsored by the Religious Education Club. "The Inside Story of 5800" was enacted by the married couples of 5800 Maryland. "The Wages of Sin" presented by the Fellows gave guests an opportunity to gamble on a race between Colwell and Wieman, two turtles. Chicago Theological Seminary furnished a fortune-teller to throw light on the future; and the New Testament Club threw light on the past with colored slides of New Testament manuscripts. An attempt was made by the Theology Club to co-ordinate the theological views of the various faculty members in a skit entitled "The Puzzle of Life"; and an analysis of the I.Q.'s of several faculty members was made by members of Disciples Divinity House. "Full-headed Babies" presented by the Faculty was a group of baby pictures of the Faculty. Professor Knox was judged by guests to be the most beautiful baby.

Refreshments of punch and hot dogs climaxed the evening.

ALUMNI NOTES

Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, Dean of the Chapel and Associate Dean of the Divinity School, will speak on "The Church and the Present Crisis" at the annual meeting of the Divinity School Alumni Association of the Northern Baptist Convention.
